GAME FOR KIDS

Hi there, and welcome to our Internet town!

INTERNET SAFETY GAME FOR KIDS

Our Internet town is famous for being a safe place where kids can have fun on the Internet. But lately, a nasty character has been lurking around. He is sending kids yucky e-mails that they don't want to see, and sending Instant Messages asking for information that is none of his business! His bad behavior is making the town look very sick.

INTERNET SAFETY GAME FOR KIDS

Luckily, our Internet town has a hero, our Internet superhero, to fight the nasty character. But our Internet superhero isn't sure where the nasty character is hiding. Is he in the school? The library? The mall?

INTERNET SAFETY GAME FOR KIDS

Help our Internet superhero find the nasty character by guiding him through each of our Internet town's eight buildings. In each building you will have to answer a question. If you answer all eight questions right, the nasty character goes to jail, and you'll become a certified hero — just like our Internet superhero!

INTERNET SAFETY GAME FOR KIDS

After you've finished helping our Internet superhero, you can ask your Mom or Dad to help you print your official Hero Certificate, as well as the game to keep. And of course, you can always help our Internet superhero by playing the game again. We never know when new nasty characters will show up to bother the kids in our Internet town!

Good luck, and have fun!

When an online friend asks you for a picture of yourself or your family, what do you do?

- A Say "No." I never give out private information to people on the Internet.
- B Send the photo so they can see what we look like.

INTERNET SAFETY GAME FOR KIDS

You're very smart!

A Say "No." I never give out private information to people on the Internet.

You should not send pictures of yourself or your family to people on the Internet. Our Internet superhero warns you to never give strangers a picture of yourself or your family. Be sure to let a parent or a teacher know if someone online asks for your picture.

INTERNET SAFETY GAME FOR KIDS

Nope.

B Send the photo so they can see what we look like.

People who ask for your picture may be dangerous. Our Internet superhero warns you to never give strangers a picture of yourself or your family. Be sure to let a parent or a teacher know if someone online asks for your picture.

If you get an e-mail and it says you should send it to 10 friends with your name and address, what do you do?

- A Do not forward it and delete it.
- B Forward it to your friends but don't include your name and address.

INTERNET SAFETY GAME FOR KIDS

You're right!

A Do not forward it and delete it.

Messages that seem harmless may mean trouble. So follow our Internet superhero's advice: Never, ever forward these letters or add your name and address to them.

Is it okay to look at Web sites that have words or pictures that your parents or teachers wouldn't like?

- A Sure. How will anyone know?
- B No way. If I find a Web site or receive an e-mail with bad things in it, I should tell a parent or teacher.

Nope.

A Sure. How will anyone know?

When you are online, you should respect the rules. So, if you find Web sites with words or pictures you know your parents or teachers would not like, you should tell them. Our Internet superhero says that if you are unsure about your parents' rules for the Internet, ask before getting online!

If you see a picture on the Internet that makes you feel weird or scared, what should you do?

- A Nothing, I'm never scared!
- B Log off immediately and tell an adult I trust like my teacher or my mom and dad.

Nope.

A Nothing, I'm never scared!

Everyone gets scared sometimes, even adults. Our Internet superhero wants you to know that if you see something on the Internet that makes you feel weird or scared you should tell a parent, a teacher, or an adult you trust.

Good answer!

- B Log off immediately and tell an adult I trust like my teacher or my mom and dad

Sometimes things on the Internet may be weird or scary, and a parent or a teacher can help. Don't be afraid to tell them how you feel.

If someone you don't know sends you an e-mail that has an attachment, what do you do?

- A Open it.
- B Delete it and tell a parent or a teacher.

INTERNET SAFETY GAME FOR KIDS

That's not a good idea.

A Open it.

Computer viruses often come disguised as e-mail attachments. So to be safe like our Internet superhero, delete all e-mails with attachments from people that you do not know. Be careful opening e-mails with attachments from friends, too, and always ask a parent if you are unsure about opening an e-mail.

What do you do when someone on the Internet asks to meet you in person?

- A Meet the person.
- B Say no and tell a parent, a teacher or an adult that I trust.

INTERNET SAFETY

GAME FOR KIDS

No, don't do that!

A Meet the person.

Never agree to meet a stranger you met on the Internet. Not everyone on the Internet is your friend. Some people who go on line are not very nice and may do bad things, so follow our Internet superhero's lead and never, ever agree to meet someone that you meet online. It is always best to be safe!
